Page one of the fixture document describes the committee budget review in plain words. Funding will come from the regional grant, which was increased by three percent this year. Construction is expected to begin in the spring and finish before the end of next autumn.

Page two continues with the schedule for the new library and the staff who will run it. Volunteers will help with the opening week, and visitors can borrow books without any fee. The reading room will stay open late on weekdays so that students can study in the evening.
